Annie Van Meeran

The Vieland Company

Formed in the city of Lepidstadt in 4681 the Vieland Company did many great deeds. Not least among them was the routing of the Vampire Lord Ungmungus from his stronghold in the Shudderwood. Killing the Dragon Huxley the Frog, a terrible black dragon lurking in the Dipplemere Swamp and the deed for which they are most famous. Saving the life of the Crown Prince Aduard Ordranti III from agents trying to overthrow him.

Not immune to scandal themselves, it is widely reported that the paladin of the group, Annie Van Meeran, was killed by the other members. This was never proven, and instead the party have always maintained that she died by misadventure. Whatever the reason, her death marked the end of the Company and they have never adventured together since. Vieland was much safer when the Company were active – and no-one else has since filled that void.
